

Caroline Mutoko

Radio Africa

Caroline Mutoko has had a radio career that spans 14 years with ten years at Kiss 100 and 4 years at Capital Fm. The morning show radio host and programme controller is without doubt the first female broadcaster to command the morning airwaves with a mix of love, charity and brutal honesty for the issues that affect Kenyans. On the radio, Caroline Mutoko is known for delving deep into the minds and lives of Kenyans. She has been described by some as controversial, but Caroline maintains there's nothing controversial about what she does or says, she simply states the issues as they are. She has been involved in various projects and is known to be an active advocate for civil rights. Caroline has attended many events as a guest speaker such as "Educate Her Parade 2016" and the "4th annual Education and Leadership Congress".

In 2008 Caroline was awarded a Millennium Torch by the Danish government to assist in the meeting of Millennium Development Goal number 3 and her mission is to make a difference in the learning environment for girls in rural Kenya. Caroline Mutoko has been also nominated for OLX SOMA 2015 Influential Media Personality Award.
